

AFTER an unusually long and uneventful session, both houses of the Forty-ninth Congress adjourned yesterday at 3 o'clock p.m.

THE Democratic convention for the Eight Congressional District, will meet at Huntington on next Tuesday, the 15th inst. The leading candidates are General Campbell, Messrs. Enloe, Champion and Taylor, all of whom have warm friends and active support.

IN accordance with the wishes of this government, arrangements will be made as soon as practicable to bring home the bodies of De Long and his companions. The bodies are in a frozen condition, and can be easily removed to a point where metallic cases can be had.

FOR exercising his personal and political independence, Green Evans, an intelligent colored man, in the postal service, was promptly discharged from his position. This is notice to all the rest to keep out of politics unless they receive orders from official headquarters.

THE appearance of yellow fever on the southwestern borders of Texas has not created much alarm in any part of the country outside of Texas. It has been observed that yellow fever epidemics are always preceded by malarial fevers. Such has not been the case in the South this year. There are other conditions wanting: We have had a cool, healthy summer, numerous thunder storms, and an abundance of ozone. Besides this, all places likely to be attacked any year are on the alert and ready to adopt rigid quarantine measures if necessary. Memphis has already quarantined against New Orleans in a certain degree, as a matter of justifiable precaution, rather than dread of real danger. The reason is well advanced. Here it is the 9th of August, a month later than the appearance of fever here in 1879. Since that epidemic, which seemed to be supplemental to that of 1878, a great sanitary revolution has been wrought out, and Memphis is now as healthy a place as there is in the country. There has been no prevalent disease here, and the weekly mortality lists are the lowest ever known. Indeed, they are quite surprising. Some weeks the death rate among whites has been as low as four, five and six. So delightful has the weather been, so healthy and invigorating that people have gone away slowly and in very small numbers. Those who are away have gone more for pleasure, or by force of mere habit, than for health or any supposed benefit. The outlook was never better for Memphis in point of health, business and future substantial growth.

Paralysis Cured by Prayer.

SPECIAL to Cincinnati Commercial.

PITTSBURG, August 7.—A miraculous cure has been effected in Allegheny. Mrs. Jennie Gysar, a married lady, twenty-eight years of age, who has been bed-ridden for seven months, being afflicted with paralysis and pronounced incurable, got up out of her bed and has been moving ever since. Medical science having failed to bring relief, she sent for Elder S. P. Young of Harmony, Pa., a member of the Church of God, and a firm believer in the healing of the sick by prayer and anointment. He prayed with the lady for twenty minutes, then, taking her hand, bade her to arise, which she did, and has been convalescing ever since. Evidence is not wanting to substantiate this story, and the case is considered remarkable.

A CORNERED CEREAL.

Rufus Hatch at the Head of a Gigantic Manipulation That Will Send Corn Up to the Price of Wheat.

He Controls All in Sight.

Special to the Courier-Journal.

CHICAGO, August 7.—It now transpires that the visit of Rufus Hatch to this city last week had a meaning more important than at first supposed. It is reported on "Change this afternoon" that he is at the bottom of a gigantic manipulation in corn, similar to his last year's corner. It is stated that he has been laying his wires for several months and now has possession, either directly or indirectly, of nearly all the corn in the country. There are a million bushels of corn in Chicago which he controls, mostly through brokers. On the Board of Trade some corn was bought, but none was sold. Short corn advanced one cent, and was anxiously bought. Hatch's visit to Milwaukee and St. Paul is to secure control of the corn in the Northwest. The total amount of corn in sight is said to be less than 6,000,000 bushels, a large part of which is in New York, and held already by the agents of Hatch. It was stated by one of his brokers this morning that the corner will probably begin this month, and that before the new crop comes in the price of corn and wheat would meet.

MARRIED ON THE SPOT.

A Brooklyn Society Couple Left by the Train at Long Branch Return as Husband and Wife to Avoid Scandal.

NEW YORK, August 7.—Last Saturday evening Louis Mills, a son of the distinguished pianist, S. B. Mills, and connected with a leading grain house, went to Long Branch with Miss E. L. Lutz, of Brooklyn, to whom he was betrothed. Interested in listening to the music and otherwise enjoying themselves, they were surprised when they started to go home to find that the last train had left. Fearing the indignation of the young lady's parents and unfavorable comments, should they remain there over night, the advice of ex-Senator Thurman, Sam Ward and Oscar Wilde was asked in the dilemma. Thurman delivered his opinion without waiting for his conferees, advising the immediate marriage of the couple on the spot. Rev. Father Kearney, who is a guest at the hotel where the consultation occurred, was called and promptly tied the knot. The bride and groom returned to Brooklyn on the first train yesterday morning. The bride is a charming and accomplished young lady, and belongs to one of the best families in Brooklyn.

Chapman-Hart.

On Wednesday evening last, the 2nd instant, quite a crowd of friends and relatives gathered at the residence of Dr. N. Hart, about four miles east of the city, to witness the marriage of Mr. A. Y. Chapman, formerly of Georgia, to Miss Mary E. Hart, the eldest daughter of the Doctor. The editor and foreman extend their sincere thanks for invitations, but the former regrets exceedingly that he could not attend, on account of illness.

The guests were all installed in the parlors when, at the appointed hour, the handsome couple, preceded by the bridesmaids and groomsmen, marched up to the Rev. W. J. McCormick, who, in happy style, pronounced them joined together "until death shall part."

The attendants were Miss Nannie Hart and Dr. J. H. Twyman, Miss Lillie Hartbridge and Mr. S. B. Cathey, Miss Minnie Griffin and Mr. J. D. Callaway.

I intended giving our readers (especially the ladies) a description of the dresses of the bride and maids, but, after an attempt, found it beyond our province; suffice it to say, how ever, that they were perfectly lovely.

After hearty congratulations to the happy couple, all were invited to partake of one of the most elegant suppers that ever astonished our delighted vision, and the interesting ceremony just finished seemed only to have sharpened each one's appetite.

The presents were numerous, handsome, and costly; in fact, as fine an array as one could wish to see.

Merrymaking continued until a late hour, when the guests departed, feeling that they'd left behind them a couple as happy as ever falls to the lot of mortals.

Fate has paraded the chaplet of the groom with one of the fairest and sweetest flowers that bloom in the parterre of beauty, and we wish that joys and blessings as exquisite and ballowed as those engendered by a shower of roses scattered down by the hands of the Peri from the far-off garden of Paradise may crown their wedded future, and increase with the lapse of years.—[Lakeland (Fla.) Reporter, 4th.]

Dr. Nathaniel Hart, mentioned in the above notice, is a native of Tennessee, and has many relatives and friends in this as well as other Southern States, who will feel interested in the happy event so graphically described.

Death of a Venerable Lady.

Nashville American, 8.

In the Fayetteville Express, of last week, memorial notice is made of the death of an aged lady, well known in that community, and to many persons who had met her in connection with one who was long an inmate of her household, Mrs. Martha Stonebraker, familiarly and affectionately known as "Aunt Patsy," was a resident of Lincoln county for more than sixty years. A person of native, sterling qualities of character, exalted and refined by sincere and practical exemplifications of Christian professions, she was esteemed as she was known by all, of every age and rank in life. Her death, though for a number of years she was an invalid, leaves a blank in the society of Fayetteville, which is feelingly expressed in the published tributes to her worth.

Her removal is an interesting fact to the wide circle of the friends of the venerable George W. Jones. For forty-nine years, before and since her widowhood, some thirteen years ago, that gentleman had occupied rooms in her house as a boarder, and she was devotedly attached to him. It is rarely that relationship is sustained for nearly half a century between two individuals, and the deep interest she took in the career of that distinguished gentleman when he was in public life and her unceasing care for his domestic comfort was romantic. The death of his aged friend and housekeeper is doubtless a keen bereavement to him, and his compulsory removal to some quarters, however hospitable, will be a reluctant separation from scenes that had become almost a part of his existence. But one whose green old age has troops of friends will be sure to find a welcome roof tree among them.

THE GARFIELD MANSION.

A Proposition to Preserve it as a Memorial.

Special to the Cincinnati Commercial.

WASHINGTON, August 7.—The special committee of the Ohio Republican Association to consider the prospective purchase of the Garfield Mansion here, met at the Ebbitt House to-night. In the course of two hours' discussion they found that they did not know exactly what Mrs. Garfield's idea was in consenting to sell them the house.

It was suggested that perhaps she wanted the mansion preserved intact as it is, in memory of her illustrious husband, as Mount Vernon is preserved in memory of Washington.

On the other hand it was suggested while she wished the library, in which General Garfield did so much of his best work, preserved as it was when he last left it, that she was entirely willing that the new owners of the house should adapt it to their own purposes. But no one knew definitely what she did want, so Judge Lawrence, President of the Association, and chairman of the special committee, was authorized to correspond with her, and find out what her wishes were in the premises. It seems probable that if Mrs. Garfield is willing that the Association should arrange the halls as to adapt it to their purpose, and make it suitable headquarters for other people, the library being preserved intact, the Association will determine to purchase it and proceed to raise the money. It is believed, however, that if it is to be preserved as a memorial of Garfield, it should be bought by the nation and not by a small association. If the Association should buy it they would probably have no difficulty in maintaining it. If they should find themselves unable to meet the annual expenses of an enterprise, it is thought here that the matter would be taken up in Ohio, as it was last year that the Governor should recommend to the Legislature the maintenance of an Ohio headquarters at the National Capitol.

A FRISKY GRASS WIDOW

Tries to Rope in a Frisky Old Codger, but He Breaks Away.

Cincinnati Penny Paper, 7.

Mrs. Hassaurek, divorced wife of Fred Hassaurek, threatens to bring suit against "Governor" I. Morton, a well known citizen of Cambridge, Guernsey county, O., for breach of promise of marriage. Governor Morton is seventy-two years of age and Mrs. Hassaurek is forty-two. He is a very spry old gentleman, fond of ladies' society, and occasionally visits Cincinnati to enjoy himself by attending the theaters and the opera. In one of his visits last winter he met Mrs. Hassaurek, and a friendship sprang up which led to a tender correspondence. The sentiments contained in some of his letters to Mrs. Hassaurek are construed into declarations of love and promise of marriage. When urged to come to time by the lady, the old gentleman declined, and said he never meant marriage. Mrs. Hassaurek then threatened to appeal to the courts for redress, employed a lawyer, and had his letters to her published in the Enquirer of yesterday morning. The affair has caused something of a sensation in certain circles of society.

Mrs. Hassaurek is the daughter of Andrew Lamb, of Arondal, agent of the Longworth estate. Her first husband, Mr. Atherton, died some seven years ago. She was then a handsome widow, with two children. About fifteen years ago she married Fred Hassaurek. They lived together but a short time, when she left Hassaurek and returned to her father. In 1874, according to the records of the court Hassaurek was granted a divorce from her on the ground of willful absence of seven years. The court allowed her $1200 a year alimony while she remained unmarried. Since that time she has been living in good style on Morris street. According to the laws of Ohio, Mrs. Hassaurek is a free woman, and may marry whenever she finds a husband. She is a well preserved woman of her age, rather plump, with dark eyes and dark hair, sprinkled with gray. She dresses in a youthful and rather would be bewitching way, and attracts attention on the street. Morton is said to be one of the home-bred men in Ohio, and isn't very rich either.

A reporter called upon W. A. Ramsey, attorney for Governor Morton, this morning, who said: "There is nothing in this suit, and I am certain no suit will be brought. Governor Morton is fond of ladies. Mrs. Hassaurek is a blooming grass widow, fond of attention, and wants an old gentleman with some money for a husband. She thought she had caught Morton, but found she was mistaken, and to get even published some soft letters she had received from him. I do not think she ever intends to bring a suit. Anybody who knows anything about law can see she has no case by reading Morton's letters. I don't think the case will ever be heard of in the courts. I won't say Mrs. Hassaurek expected to frighten Morton into paying her money. People can draw their own conclusions."

LONDON, August 9.—The steamer Mosel, from Bremen to New York, is aground under Lizard Point, and her position is very precarious. She has a hole through her bow. She struck at 8:30 this morning. ## Outrage and Murder.

Lewis Neederman, a laborer was held up by highwaymen in a remote portion of this city and robbed and beaten half to death. He now lies in a precarious condition.

Train Accident—Fire.

CHICAGO, August 9.—The Lake Shore has suffered another accident to freight trains at Clyde, O., Tuesday morning, which delayed trains and caused considerable damage. Carelessness was the cause.

A Dwight (Ill.) special says: Eleven buildings were burned here yesterday. Loss, $18,000; insurance, $14,000. The fire is supposed to be the work of an incendiary.

A special from Jamestown, D. T., says that the Rufus Hatch party of heavy operators on Wall street, were surprised at the great grain crops shown them by the Board of Trade yesterday. Hatch said to a friend that this crop would put $300,000 into his pocket.

Wall Street.

NEW YORK, August 9, 11 a.m.—The stock market opened strong and 1/2 per cent higher, the latter for Alton & Terre Haute. In the early dealings there was a general decline of 1/4 per cent, Alton & Terre Haute leading, after which the market became strong and prices sold up 1/4 per cent, Lackawanna, Chicago, Burlington & Quincy and New Jersey Central being the most prominent in the advance.

Wheat, 1/2c better, firm and quiet.

Fall of a Church's Clock-Weight.

Troy Times.

About 11:40 o'clock yesterday morning, while a congregation of 500 persons was listening at St. Peter's to a sermon by Father O'Connell, of Ireland, a terrible crash was heard, and hundreds of persons started to their feet, supposing the tower of the church had fallen. Four-fifths of those present were women, and a panic at once ensued, which even Father Ludden was at first powerless to stop. Women lost their wits, and children became frantic with fright. A number of women attempted to escape by the windows, and many would have been injured but for the efforts of Father Ludden, who ascended the pulpit and insisted there was no danger. He implored the congregation to remain quiet and continued speaking until the excitement had subsided. The crash was caused by the fall of one of the weights of the great clock from the clock. The weights are of 800 pounds each suspended from wooden buckets about four feet deep and two feet square, filled with lead and iron. The rope which suspended one of the weights parted about seventy-five feet from the ground floor, and the 800 pounds of metal went crashing through the ceiling and floor back to the vestibule of the church. The quantity of plaster that came with the wooden bucket helped to make the crash greater, and the report was so loud that persons living in Jacob street distinctly heard it. The rope which held the weight was about an inch and a half in diameter, and had been in use more than ten years. It was badly worn, and should have been removed long ago.

"FILL TAKE HEAD."

The Words at a Dance That Cost the Speaker His Life.

Little Rock Gazette, 8.

Last month one year ago the colored people down at Wild Cat landing gave a ball on the Mosby place. It was attended by all the dandies for many miles around, and several of the fancy fellows of the colored persuasion were also there, cutting a high figure among the dusky damsels.

Way late at night, while the dance was fast and furious, Ed Riley, with a yellow girl on his arm, whirled out to the center of the floor, and cried out: "Form sets. I'll take head."

"Get around on the side," cried Essex Chambers; "I dance head all the time."

"Not if I dance," said Riley. "Get around, man," replied Chambers; "or there'll be trouble."

"You bet I dance here, and you hear me!"

The music struck up, and Essex slipped out the side door. Just as the caller whined out "all hands round," Essex stuck his head in the door and yelled out, "Stand back! stand back!" He had an old musket in his hand, and as the dancers fell back he blazed away, pouring the contents of the weapon into Riley's face. He dropped to the floor and expired in a few minutes. In the midst of the excitement which ensued the murderer escaped.

One day last week Jeff Embury was fined in the police court for some minor offense. Having no wealth wherewith to pay the fine, he was sent to the chain-gang. He worked well, and Saturday night the officials let him out to return on Monday. It so happened that Jeff was in the hall of Wild Cat landing and saw the murder of Riley by Chambers. He also knew that there was a reward for Chambers' arrest, and had several times made an attempt to find him. So on Sunday, while he was enjoying his day's liberty, he dropped into the barber shop near the corner of Commerce and Second streets. To his surprise and delight he saw Chambers sitting quietly in his chair waiting for "next."

Jeff quietly slipped around by the side of his colored brother and said: "Essex, I want you."

"What for?"

"For the murder of Ed Riley at Wild Cat."

"Well, I'll go."

"Go in the saloon and get a gun," said Jeff to a bystander. The man complied, and the two marched Essex Chambers up to the City Hall and delivered him to the Chief of Police. So much for the colored people. There are at least a few of them that do not hesitate to capture a murderer, even when he is one of their own race.

Sunday night Jeff Embury was arrested by Deputy Constable Howe on a peace warrant, but, being a city prisoner, and serving out a sentence, Officer Bolton refused to turn him over, and in fact locked him up in the calaboose.
